Humanism (A Success Story of NSS)

I feel privilege to share a small humanity story about an uncared person. It is a story about a person who is neglected and uncared in his life. I have been observing him for the past two years standing near female with soiled cloths with without proper shave and dress. Later after assuming the charge as NSS Programme officer I have made an attempt to transform the man as a civilized person. I with my NSS Volunteers visited him and talk to him so dearly about his sad plight. Inspite of Our efforts at one stage he got convinced for our human approach. Making use of his consent we shaved with our hands and gave fine bath removing durst for years and foul smell emitting his body. After that we made him wear new dress and feed him stomach full. Later he was taken orphanage to look after his welfare. The authorities congratulated us for our Humanity and attempt to make a man as refined being. As NSS Programme officer I Personally feel that this kind of human approach would enable me to reform so many people in the society who are destitutes and uncared in the modern society. I too as a NSS Programme officer I congratulated my Husband Dr. P. Ravi Sekhar, Incharge, Department of Zoology, NSS Volunteers for their endless efforts in creating a kind of Euphoria in the people that institutions and particularly teachers Working in Educational institutions can transform society with social service with a motto “Not me But You”.
